City of San Mateo Awarded Additional $1.75 Million in Federal Funding for Local Projects

City to Update Emergency Response Tech, Child Care Center

San Mateo, CA – The City of San Mateo will receive an additional $1.75 million in federal funds for updated emergency response technology and important building upgrades to a local day care center. Congressman Kevin Mullin (CA-15) secured the additional Community Project Funding that will go directly toward crucial local projects.

Renovations to the Lakeshore Community Center will help provide affordable childcare, and new technology for the City's Real Time Information Center will better support public safety in serving residents.

"This is a win for our community to receive additional federal funding in two crucial areas, public safety and affordable childcare," Mayor Adam Loraine said. "Up-to-date tech is key for emergency responders, and an investment in preschool is an investment in a vital future. Our City extends our thanks to Congressman Mullin for his continued dedication and advocacy. More funding will make a real difference."

- Lakeshore Community Center – $1,200,000
  The funding will support planning and design to renovate the City of San Mateo's Lakeshore Community Center, and create a full-day preschool for low-income families. The center has not seen significant upgrades since it opened in 1967 and is currently only able to function as a part-time day care.
- Real Time Information Center Technology – $550,000
  This project will support key technology acquisition and installation for the City's RTIC, a centralized hub that provides real-time information to enhance emergency response and City services. The RTIC integrates data from license plate readers, traffic systems, weather data and surveillance systems to assist law enforcement, fire, EMS, traffic and emergency response teams.
