Thirteen years ago, my husband and I chose San Mateo as our home. We fell in love with the walkable neighborhoods and strong sense of community, and decided to raise our children here. Today, I'm committed to a vision of San Mateo where every family can afford to stay, our streets are safe, and growth strengthens – not divides – our city.

Knocking every door in District 3, I heard a shared desire for safety and affordability, and frustration that local government has stopped listening and promises go unmet.

As an entrepreneur and mom, I take action. After the third pedestrian died, I founded Safe Streets for Everyone to fight for real infrastructure. When our downtown pedestrian mall was at risk of closure, I co-founded B Street Boosters to save it. As your Planning Commissioner, I've championed thoughtful housing that prioritizes affordability and opens doors to homeownership while protecting the neighborhoods we love.

My priorities are clear: expand affordable housing, make streets safer for children and seniors, invest in climate-resilient infrastructure, and protect vital services through fiscal responsibility. San Mateo deserves proactive, data-driven leadership that listens and follows through. That's why I'm supported by Mayor Adam Loraine, Board of Supervisors President Noelia Corzo, and School Board President Maggie Trinh. Learn more at seemaforsanmateo.com
